Modern Slavery: Our approach to making a difference

Belron UK Limited trades as Autoglass® and Laddaw®:-

Autoglass® repairs or replaces any type of glass on any make, model or age of vehicle. We serve around 1 million customers every year and we operate a mobile service so that we can serve our customers wherever it's convenient for them.

Laddaw® is a wholesaler and distributor of vehicle replacement glass and other associated products. Each week we distribute over 60,000 products across our network of branches.

Belron UK Limited is part of the Belron group, the worldwide leader in vehicle glass repair and replacement, with over 25,000 employees, in over 30 countries across 5 continents. Belron UK Limited is a subsidiary of Belron International Limited.

The majority of products required for our core activities are in vehicle glass repair and replacement. They include, windscreens, other vehicle glass parts, associated accessories, and the tools and consumables required in our operations. Many of these are sourced through our parent company. We also source products for re-sale and goods and services for use by the UK business.

Our parent company is a signatory to the United Nations Global Compact initiative which means we support 10 principles within four important areas: human rights, labour, the environment and anti-corruption. We choose our suppliers on clear and fair policies without bias or favouritism. They must all demonstrate that they are socially and environmentally responsible and have high standards of ethical behaviour and comply with all relevant legislation. Our Way of Working also sets out our approach with regards to human rights and labour conditions.

We have a cross functional team to assess how best to address modern slavery. The team is made up of specialists from Procurement, Legal, Health & Safety and Corporate Responsibility.

With regards to recruitment, we follow a rigorous process that includes carrying out appropriate checks regarding each individual's eligibility to work in the UK. All employees follow an induction process that includes Our Way of Working. This describes the behaviours we expect of everyone who is employed by us and those we partner with. Our people are committed to ensuring that discrimination, harassment and bullying are all deemed unacceptable. We ensure that everyone's human rights are respected; relationships with our partners and suppliers are based on integrity; and we have a sustainable supply chain.

We encourage our people to speak up if they witness any behaviour which concerns them. This can be done internally or through our independently managed "Speak Up" line. All reports to the "Speak Up" line are investigated and appropriate measures taken.

We benchmark our corporate responsibility commitments each year using an externally assessed sustainability tool that is based on the United Nations Global Compact principles, ISO2600 framework and the Global Reporting Initiative. This programme assesses our policies, actions and results, in the areas of environment, labour practices and human rights, fair business practices and sustainable procurement.

We have a Supplier Code of Conduct, which includes our expectations in relation to human rights and labour conditions. Suppliers are required to comply with the Supplier Code of Conduct when they supply their products and services to us. We are introducing new software to enhance the existing due diligence process to mitigate the risk of slavery and human trafficking.

A Procurement eLearning module is being introduced in 2017. It is a compulsory programme for all our people involved in procuring goods and services and is part of their induction programme. This module builds on the existing Procurement Good Practice Guide. Additional e-learning modules supporting Our Way of Working are also compulsory to new and existing employees.
